

Alba Sanchez steals the show!

Yes Mijas, I know this is a late story, but I really have to tell you about this loca named Alba Sanchez.

It was April and I got a call from my good friend Mike Ferrer, he and his wife Dina organize this Hispanic Leadership Conference in my area every year with the help of the UAW Hispanic Leadership Council. So he calls me and says, "Roberta...Mija...CEO of Mija Magazine..." Me: "Why Michael what a great surprise! How can I help you sir?" "Well Roberta, do you know of ANY entertainers that will "whoo" the Latinos of Ohio." Me: "Gee Mike, I do and her name is Alba Sanchez and she's crazy, I juuuust did an article on her." To make a long story short Ms. Sanchez ended up coming down to my hometown. And of course Mike made me her shadow...or her assistant!

So I'm at the airport, and I see some short wild-haired Latina wearing Asian clothing...guess who that was? Yep, Ms. Sanchez herself. I was going to throw fortune cookies at her, but even though I knew she was a comedienne, I also knew she was from the Bronx and this Boricua didn't want to get karate-kicked in the stomach by her.

The next day at the conference went smoothly, she was focused and quiet. Until, it was show time, then her whole façade changed! The crowd loved her and her stage presence...WOW...can you say flawless? Some people didn't know what to expect! Some were afraid of her language. I had volunteers from the conference committee coming up to me saying, "Roberta, I hope she keeps things clean. This is a family conference." Pero, she did great! I commend her in altering her act just to accommodate the participants attending the conference. She was the star of the show and stood out amongst the whole event.

If you are an organizer of any conference or event, Alba Sanchez is your woman! Just please don't feed her any meat...she's a vegetarian. That was a first for me...just think; a Puerto Rican vegetarian? What the heck do you eat at Thanksgiving Mija? Baked Beans? Ew.

Meeting Alba Sanchez is an experience in its own. It was a pleasure and an honor spending time with her and Mija Magazine wishes this loca limitless success!
